Sides Will Welcome Good Offices

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The United States will make no further efforts to bring about peace in Europe until it has received information that its own policy will be welcomed by both sides of the conflict. This was made official today by the State Department in a dispatch to the press.

The pope's message will not be made public until the government has had time to consider its contents. The contents of the message is known, however, to give basis for indications that the pope is not adverse to discussing peace.

Cardinal Gibbons had returned today to his home in Baltimore without delay. Information regarding the pope's message has been made known to the cardinal, who is expected to make a statement regarding peace having been made.

The pope's message, however, that the pontiff's message praises President Wilson's attitude and indicates a belief that the United States might be in a position to help in bringing about a cessation of hostilities.

British Have Taken No Steps Toward Peace

(By Associated Press.)
LONDON, Sept. 3.—In high official circles here it is learned authoritatively that recent rumors of peace have no foundation in any step taken by the British government or in any sources.

No member of the government would permit himself to be drawn into discussion of the peace rumors which have recently gained wide circulation.

Title of 'Hun' for German Ships in Hands of British

(By Associated Press.)
LONDON, Sept. 3.—The British admiralty has directed that all ex-German merchant ships taken over for auxiliary service in the navy should be renamed with a title having the word "Hun" to associate their names with the original owners. Seven captured steamers have already been so renamed.

Anderson and Marston Lead Opponents 2 Up

Anderson Is Two Up on Sherman and Marston Is Leading Gardner by Same Score in National Golf Meet

(By Associated Press.)
DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 3.—Robert A. Gardner, of Chicago, met Max T. Marston, of Springfield, N. J., in one of the semi-final matches for the national amateur golf championship today. Some match play began last Monday, every favorite except Gardner has been eliminated.

The other match was between John G. Anderson, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., and Sherill Sherman of Utica. When twenty-five holes of the semi-finals had been played the results were: Marston 2 up on Gardner; Anderson 2 up on Sherman.

Each of the semi-finalists has enjoyed distinction in the tournament. Marston put off Jerry Travers, national open champion. Gardner overwhelmingly defeated Ned Sawyer, the man who eliminated "Chick" Evans, Sherman's conqueror of Jimmy Standish, of Detroit, who stopped the amateur champion, Francis.

None of the quartette of winners would be playing today. They had not been fortunate in tight situations. Anderson might possibly be chased as an exception, because he missed with this far was the victory over Hush, two up and one. The southerner, however, lost at least three holes by unskillful approaches and putts which grazed the cup.

One of Sherman's matches went 27 holes. He won from Standish yesterday on the 35th green and he played 35 to take Albert Sledge into captivity.

Marston began the week by beating Jesse Guilford, of Boston, after a try-out. Tuesday he played sensational golf to defeat Travers. For seventeen consecutive holes the open champion was equalled or bettered on all but two holes, and yet he won only two of these.

Marston's only easy match was with Gardner. Monday one up, Tuesday, Tom Sherman, of Utica, fought the Yale matchmaker until white flag was hoisted.

Cardinal Gibbons had returned today to his home in Baltimore without delay. Information regarding the pope's message has been made known to the cardinal, who is expected to make a statement regarding peace having been made.

(By Associated Press.)
BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Sept. 3.—Three of the Mexican bandits operating just north of Brownsville were killed last night by county officers at Los Cuartos, fourteen miles north of Brownsville, according to information received here today.

In addition to the Mexicans killed last night, it is said a Mexican woman, deserted by her husband when the outlaw appeared at their home north of here last night, was accidentally killed by United States soldiers when she approached them in the darkness in search of protection.

The Mexicans killed by county officers were members of a band which yesterday burned a trestle north of Brownsville and killed two Americans, Earl Donaldson and J. S. Smith.

At Fort Brown it was stated today that troops would remain in the field until all of the bandits had either been killed or captured.

Surely out in a close cordon, which left no foot of the international boundary unprotected, the border guards were ready to shoot on sight if the first remaining members of the band made any effort to ford the swollen Rio Grande to Mexico and safety.

In addition to the soldiers, there were hundreds of armed Texas Rangers, who pursued the trail of the Mexicans to avenge the deaths of the two Americans, Earl Donaldson and J. S. Smith.

Stanley Dodds, a contractor, was unhurt by the Mexicans, but he was shot in the back of the head by a bandit. Dodds, however, was not hurt.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—General von Hindenburg's army captured Grodno from the Russians after forcing the Niemen river and engaging in battle in the streets of the town.

Sofia reports that a British transport struck a mine off the entrance of the Dardanelles and sank with a loss of 1,870 lives, 500 soldiers, 1,220 men and a crew of 350.

The surrounding of an important part of the Turkish forces on the Gallipoli peninsula by troops of the allies, reported in advices from Athens to a Paris news agency. The surrendering of the surrounded troops is said to be imminent.

(By Associated Press.)
BERLIN, Sept. 3.—(By Wireless to Tuckerton.)—The army of Field Marshal von Hindenburg has captured Grodno.

An announcement to this effect was made at army headquarters today, as follows: "Field Marshal von Hindenburg's army conquered Grodno after rapidly forcing a passage of the Niemen and fighting between the Augustow canal and the Swidlo-Leniewo line. A German cavalry advanced to the northwest and the Russians attempted to oppose our advance but failed, suffering extraordinary losses. Some of the Russian troops were thrown back. General von Gallwitz's troops repulsed the resistance of the enemy on the Aleksey-Swidlo canal. Field Marshal von Hindenburg's army has captured more than 3,000 Russians, as well as one cannon and 15 machine guns.

STORES WILL BE OPEN ALL DAY TOMORROW

Shoppers Are Cordially Invited to Come Early and Stay Late

With the advent of September the Atlanta business establishments which have observed week-end half holidays throughout the summer months will resume the regular schedule of six full business days each week. The first evidence of the change will be noted tomorrow (Saturday) when all of the stores will remain open throughout the day.

The department stores along Whitehall street were among the number of commercial houses in the Saturday half holiday agreement through the heated months of May, June, July and August, and they will, of course, be among the number whose establishments will be open all day tomorrow—Saturday.

The week and half holiday agreement provided only that the establishments participating in the arrangement should close at 1 o'clock on each Saturday until September.

Those shoppers who find Saturday the most convenient day for making their purchases will have all day tomorrow available for their selections. The merchants especially invite them to come early and stay late.

MISS WOOTTEN GOES TO SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTEFormer Librarian of Carnegie Library Is Named on Library Staff

Miss Katherine Wootten, former head librarian of the Carnegie Library and one of the leading authorities on library matters in the south, has been appointed on the library staff of the Smithsonian Institute at Washington and will leave Atlanta October 1 to take that position.

While the many friends of Miss Wootten in Atlanta regret that her appointment takes her away from this city, they congratulate her on obtaining an important place in an institution so famous as the Smithsonian Institute. Not only should the work prove interesting and congenial for her, but she will be a valuable addition to the Smithsonian staff.

For years Miss Wootten has been regarded as one of the leading librarians of the country and as such her appointment has been sought by other libraries in many cities. She is an authority on literature and has compiled much interesting data on authors and their works, especially those of the south, such as O. Henry, Joel Chandler Harris and others.

During her long service at the head of the Carnegie Library, Miss Wootten made it one of the best in the country. She won the friendship and warm esteem of all who were associated with her, and so perfected the staff that patrons of the library never failed to find their needs answered promptly, efficiently and pleasantly.

Girls of Atlanta
Adopting Soldiers
For "Brothers"

Atlanta girls today are enthusiastically taking up a new fad. They are adopting brothers and sons in the army of the allies, writing letters and sending cigarettes and other remembrances to the soldiers in the trenches.

The suggestion came from Madame R. L. Laurent, a prominent Parisienne, in the Soldiers' National Home in France, who said the ladies of Paris had formed a society called the Soldiers' Mothers or Godmothers.

"There are many soldiers fighting who are so far from home that they don't remember them," she added. "Why couldn't the women of Atlanta adopt some of them?"

Dr. May called back for the names of 200 men who are without family and let some of the women in Atlanta know about it. Already he has received scores of names of Atlanta girls who want a soldier-brother to write to and is ready for more at his office in the Grand building.

"SEEING GEORGIA" SCOUT
CAR LEFT HERE FRIDAYAnother Car Will Go Over
Ground Thursday and Finish
Work of Routing Tour

The first "Seeing Georgia" tour, left Atlanta Friday morning and will go to the ground and complete the work of routing the tour.

The itinerary planned for the second "Seeing Georgia" tour is: Macon to Athens, to Commerce, to Gainesville, Tallahassee, to Dubuque, to Rome, to Atlanta.

The executive committee in charge of the tour has named W. J. Stoddard, of Atlanta, as manager, and he will go over the tour route, starting next Thursday.

An innovation for the tour will be a series of colored sign boards, denoting the character of the road to be traversed, and this it is believed will do much toward eliminating the probability of accidents.

The scout cars are Studebakers, furnished by A. C. Webb, southern district manager for the Studebaker corporation.

Accompanying the scout cars will be movie men, representing the Scenic Film company, who will make a number of instructive pictures during the tour.

At a meeting of the executive committee Thursday afternoon the following committee chairmen were named: Thomas H. Gentry, chairman rules committee; L. W. Hooks, entries committee; Lee Barnes, hotel arrangements; and J. W. Wylie West, entertainment committee.

The executive committee consists of W. J. Dabney, T. R. Gentry, "Bill" Stoddard, George D. McCutcheon and A. C. Webb.

NO CLUE TO SLAYER
OF REAL ESTATE MAN

(By Associated Press.)
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—The police apparently have made no progress in their efforts to solve the mystery surrounding the murder of Samuel S. Cord, the wealthy real estate dealer of Laurel Springs, N. J., who was found dead on the outskirts of Camden Tuesday with five bullet wounds in his body.

The Philadelphia police stick to the theory that Cord was killed in a business quarrel. Olaf Peterson, of Riverdale, N. J., a partner in a real estate venture, is detained by the Camden authorities as a material witness, but he may be given his liberty today.

NEW CHILD STARS ARE TWINKLING IN FILM FIRMAMENT

HERE ARE TWO of the newest child stars in the film firmament. Beulah (left) and Thelma Burns have already won fame in childhood's fascinating profession.

Beulah and Thelma Burns, Aged Three and Five, Respectively, Have Won Niche in Movie Hall of Fame

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 2.—Every day a new child star twinkles into the firmament of films.

Why? Because a moving picture reproduces real life in all its interesting details, and children constitute one of the most important, pleasing and intensely interesting of these. These are reasons why the child has found its niche in the hall of "movie" fame.

Two of the latest recruits to the happy, healthy new profession of children are Beulah and Thelma Burns.

They don't learn lines. They don't have any set routine for the day. They don't have to be up at night or undergo any strenuous fatigue. All they have to do is play, as they would at home in their own back yard.

Both little maids, who are near of an age, think it particular joy to be able to ride down in the early morning with daddy and mother to the "movie" ranch.

Little Beulah, three, with golden hair, has picked out Lillian Gish as her ideal. Thelma, aged five, with dark hair, thinks Mary Allen just right, and spends her spare time watching the clever player. When she thinks folks are not looking, she often tries out some of the little graces she sees her ideal practice.

GOOD MUSICAL COMEDY
OPENS ATLANTA THEATER

"When Dreams Come True"
Attraction Friday and Saturday of Next Week

To open the season with a musical comedy of merit, the Atlanta will start its season until Friday and Saturday of next week. Then "When Dreams Come True" will be presented by an excellent cast of singers and dancers.

The box office will open Monday and full preparations for the season will be completed during the first days of the week. Painters and cleaners have been rehiring the theater during the past two weeks and it will be as bright and fresh as any Friday night.

When "Dreams Come True" has been attracting much attention from the critics on route south. At Wilmington, Del., the Journal said "The first weather which prevailed Saturday night had no effect on the audience that greeted 'When Dreams Come True,' at the opening of The Playhouse for the season. The theater was filled and those who attended had the pleasure of seeing an excellent musical comedy in the hands of capable players. The attraction was thoroughly appreciated, and it deserved to be, for it is different from any musical comedy presented in this city in a long time."

WALKER TO INVESTIGATE
DUCKTOWN SITUATION

A personal investigation will be made by Attorney General Clifford Walker in the conditions obtaining in the vicinity of the copper smelting plants at Copper Hill and Ducktown, Tenn., which have formed the subject of several vigorous complaints to Governor Harris by persons owning property in Georgia near the Tennessee line. The persons have complained that the copper smelting is seriously violating their contracts with the state in the matter of turning their devastating fumes over the line into Georgia farms.

ATLANTA MAKES PLANS TO OBSERVE LABOR DAYSpecial Celebration Will Be Held at Piedmont Park
Next Monday

Although there will be no parade this year, Labor day, which comes next Monday, will be generally celebrated throughout Atlanta. There will be a special celebration at Piedmont park.

In observance of the day, federal, state and city offices will be closed. Many manufacturing concerns and business houses will also observe the day.

Governor Harris on Thursday issued a proclamation formally declaring Monday as Labor day.

There will be games and a picnic at Piedmont park, and Manager J. O. Corbitt, of the park system, has arranged for the band to play at Piedmont park on Monday instead of Sunday.

The standing Labor day committee, which is composed of the members of the executive board of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, is as follows: William Robinson, president; L. A. Carrington, vice president; J. R. New, recording secretary; Carl Karstrom, financial secretary; and James A. Allen, chairman of the board of trustees.

A feature of the day's celebration will be the field maneuvers of Battery B, Atlanta, artillery, at Fort McPherson. The field guns of the artillery were taken Friday to the target range at the belt on the north side of the city. Battery B will be in practice for the maneuvers on Monday.

J. W. MIMS HAS THREE WIVES, POLICE ASSERTRecorder Binds Him Over on Charge of Bigamy Under $500 Bond

Instead of only two wives, J. W. Mims, according to the police, is the father of three, all living and non-divorced. Arraigned before Recorder Johnson Thursday afternoon he was held under $500 bond, charged with bigamy.

Two of Mims' wives were present in court. One was Miss Lucy Sweet, his first, whom he married in Atlanta three years ago and deserted. Believing she was divorced, he later married Thomas Puckett, and announced her intention of divorcing her Thursday morning. A divorce from Mims and remarriage Puckett.

Mims' second wife was Lena Malone, the police say, married in South Carolina two years ago and deserted. She was not in court. Wife No. 3, Myra Jordan, was married to Mims last Sunday.

"I am not going to marry Mims if he is divorced," she declared. "He's been married enough already. I think, besides, I'm young and good-looking enough to get a husband who hasn't quite so many wives already."

"COLUMBIA," the new city hospital, which is being completed by the city of Columbus at a cost of $100,000, is to be managed by a board composed of the following citizens, which were named at a meeting held yesterday: Dr. F. L. Rosenthal, Dr. Phillips, C. J. Swift and Robert Joerg with Mayor Cox as ex officio member. This body will have entire control of the institution when it is formally opened this fall.

HINDENBURG'S ARMY CONQUERS RUSSIANS IN A STREET BATTLE

tenable when the Germans cut the Grodno-Vilna railway line to the north and were fighting their way to the stronghold from west and south. Grodno is regarded as a powerful link in the Russian defenses against invasion. It lies only about fifty miles from the German border on the trunk railway line running from Petrograd through Vilna to Warsaw. The city of Grodno is the capital of Grodno province and has a population of about 40,000.

British Romaine Sunk

By a German Submarine
LONDON, Sept. 3.—The British submarine Romaine has been sunk, it is rumored, by a German submarine. The crew has been landed safely.

The Romaine was a vessel of 1,625 tons. She sailed from Bristol July 12 for Lough Swilly, where she arrived July 25. No records are available of her movements since that date.

Russians Retiring From Galicia Punish Pursuers Severely

LONDON, Sept. 3.—The evacuation of Grodno is under way. Petrograd admits that Russian forces are being withdrawn from the right bank of the Nieman. The loss of the Russian army's last of its strong fortresses has been completed. It has been evident for some time that Grand Duke Nicholas had no intention of allowing a number of men sufficient to maintain a long defense to be penned up in any fortress which could be invested.

Along the Galician border General Ivanoff continues to retire, but without inflicting heavy losses on the Austro-German forces which have been shaken several times by vigorous counter attacks.

In the center and the extreme north the Germans are making little progress. The Russians claim another local success near Vilna.

The great artillery duel continues along a large part of the western front held by the French. The ultimate purpose of this activity is still obscure. The British press has been greatly pleased at the reception by the United States of Germany's promise to modify her submarine campaign. It complains that a promise which does not include protection for merchantmen is inadequate.

Governor Harris to Go to Mountains to Rest

Chief Executive Undecided About Date and Subject Matter for Extra Session

Acting upon the advice of his physicians that he rest for a few days, Governor Harris will leave Saturday morning for the mountains to rest.

Mr. Harris at Hampton, Carter county, Tennessee, where he will take a complete vacation until September 12, when he will return to Atlanta and resume his duties.

The governor suffered a nervous breakdown as the result of the arduous work he performed during the session of the legislature and immediately after its adjournment, and he has found it impossible to completely recover and resume his work.

Governor Harris stated Friday that he had not definitely decided when he will call the extra session of the legislature nor what legislation he would include in his call. He still inclines to call the session in November for the beginning of the extra session.

"While I am away on my vacation I will ruminate and pray over this matter," said the governor.

A number of people called upon the governor Friday to discuss with him the question of whether he should include prohibition legislation in his call and also to the best time for the special session. Among his advisers were W. S. Witham, of the Georgia bar, an active prohibitionist, who brought with him a copy of the Georgia constitution, and a number of prohibition addresses; State Senator B. F. Griffin, of the Third district; Representative Walter P. Andrews, of Fulton county, and St. Elmo Massengale, of Atlanta, who managed Governor Harris' campaign in Fulton.

By special authority of Governor Harris the committee will also probe charges of alleged mismanagement of the school by Superintendent W. O. Connor and alleged misappropriations of the school funds. The board of trustees of the school will co-operate with the committee in the investigation. The committee will leave Rome for Cave Springs in automobiles Tuesday morning. The members are Senators Holden, McFarland and Lawrence, and Representatives Griffin, Jones, Steele, Yeomans, Brown, Garland, Roberts, Knight and Walker.

Five Are Put to Death Inside of Just 65 Minutes

City Associated Press.

OSKINS, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Five murderers were put to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison today inside of sixty-five minutes. The men in the order of their execution were:

Antonio Salamea, of Rochester county, Pa.; Pasquale Venturi, of New York; Louis M. Roach, of Palatine Bridge, Thomas Tarpey, and William Perry, of Brooklyn.

Roach was convicted of the murder of John Barrett, a Palatine Bridge farmer, on the night of December 22, 1913. Venturi shot and killed Mrs. Alfred Carmela, with whom he boarded in Brooklyn July 25, 1913.

Tarpey killed Michael Kreba, foreman of a paper factory where he worked in Brooklyn on May 18, 1914, while Perry, a negro, killed Leonora Reddick, in New York on September 17, 1914.

Salamea is a married man, a few weeks, in June, 1914, after he accused her of being unfaithful.

Aged Merchant's Slayer

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 3.—Charles E. Trull, a young white man convicted at Charlotte of the murder of Sidney Smith, an aged merchant, May 18, 1914, today paid the death penalty in the electric chair in the state prison here.

Trull had been twice reprieved by the governor—once to allow an appeal to the supreme court and second time to allow a special commission to inquire into the condemned man's sanity. Trull made a statement of his guilt to a clergyman last Wednesday when he had been informed that all means of obtaining a commutation of sentence had failed.

Trull told the clergyman he was exhausted. Trull told the clergyman he blamed whisky, women and evil associates for his downfall.

TOURISTS ALREADY VISIT BATTLEFIELDS OF FRANCE

Ripening Harvests Conceal Much Damage Done by Shells and Machine Guns

(By Associated Press.)—PARIS, Sept. 3.—The stream of tourists who will travel unceasingly over the battlefields for scores of years after the European war is finished, has already begun. The first group of tourists, with suitable permission can now take a drive in an open carriage all day over country which was the scene of some of the most important fighting of the war, and be back at his hotel in Paris for a late supper.

There are still shattered churches and houses which show the marks of shrapnel and machine gun fire, and some of the smaller bridges over the Marne are not yet replaced. One roadside hostelry which was struck by a German shell, has changed its name to "New hostelry" and a signboard inscribed in French, "The Shell Inn."

BRITISH SAY AMERICAN GAVE A FALSE NAME

Man Who Escaped From German Concentration Camp Is Arrested in London

(By Associated Press.)—LONDON, Sept. 3.—The Express says that Charles Frey, an American automobile mechanic who escaped from a German concentration camp a few weeks ago, was arrested last night under the alias registration in New York, giving a false name. It is said his real name is Curran.

On reaching London in July a man who described himself as Charles B. Frey, of Flint, Mich., submitted to the American consulate an affidavit stating that he had been held in a German concentration camp since the beginning of the war.

He exhibited a passport he said he was prevented from communicating with American consulates and was compelled to perform hard manual labor. He said he escaped from a Wittenburg detention camp in May and walked across France, working his way to London.

GREIT MEN'S PAPER MAKES ITS APPEARANCE

Monthly Bulletin of Atlanta Association Is Neat and Attractive

"Credits" has made its debut. "Credits" is the monthly bulletin of the Atlanta Association of Credit Men, and its initial September issue is a neat eight-page sheet which is both attractive and crowded with matters of interest to all members of the association.

"The purpose of the publication is information and inspiration," says the foreword. "The European war has brought with it new credit problems. The credit man now more than ever before must keep his knowledge and his view of the situation bright and shining through the brush of current events. He must keep his hand sensitive to the pulse of changing conditions and be able to give them help which will do him the credit man's credit."

The officers of the Atlanta Association of Credit Men are as follows: J. L. Baldwin, president; H. D. Carter, second vice president; H. W. Harlan, treasurer; Harry E. Moore, secretary.

Roland H. Rowe, editor of The Journal, is chairman of the publicity committee and to him all communications intended for publication in "Credits" should be sent.

Marries Man Who Lost an Arm and Both Eyes in War

(By Associated Press.)—PARIS, Sept. 3.—A heroine of France for whom the "war cross" is demanded by the press is Madame Cantora, wife of one of the heroes of the Marne.

Madame Cantora, who lost both eyes and one arm in the Argonne. Both husband and wife are Corsicans. As soon as Madame Cantora, then Mademoiselle Patterson, heard of her husband's wounds, she started for Paris.

Madame Cantora released her from her engagement and begged her to go to the front. She was the first of her kind to link her future to a man without eyes and with only one arm.

Mademoiselle Patterson asked that she be allowed at least to nurse him until his wounds were healed, and during his convalescence she overcame his scruples. The marriage was a most pathetic spectacle. The bride was given away by her father, Jean de Castellane, one of the patronesses of the "Quint-Vingts" hospital for the blind where the patient was treated. Lieutenant Cantora has been decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

POWER COMPANY LOSES CASE IN POLICE COURT

Judge Holds City Can Specify Kind of Foundation for Car Tracks

Recorder George S. Johnson Thursday afternoon upheld the contention of the city that it has the right to specify the kind of foundation to be laid under car tracks by the Georgia Railway and Power company.

The recorder fined George Gully, a superintendent of the power company, $25.75 because he placed a crushed stone foundation under part of the tracks on Grant street when the city construction department was insisting that a concrete foundation be placed under the tracks in accordance with the concrete ordinance over which the city and the company are now warring in the superior court.

The hearing of the case lasted several hours. City Attorney James L. Mayson was represented by the city, while Gully was represented by Attorneys Colquitt & Conyers.

Police Raids in Paris Continue Despite the War

(By Associated Press.)—PARIS, Sept. 3.—Promenaders on the grand boulevards of Paris have recently been treated to a spectacle comparatively rare since the beginning of the war—general police raids such as were effected at regular intervals during the days of the "Anarches."

In the ninth and eighteenth arrondissements, comprising Montmartre and Belleville, the favorite quarters of the hordes of foreigners who flock to the boulevards, the raids are most thorough. They are organized by Monsieur Roussel, chief of one of the metropolitan districts, who has under his orders eight commissaires of police and two police captains, who command four squads of "plain-clothes" men that sweep the boulevards.

Two squads operating on both sides of the boulevard, while two other squads start from the Madeleine, and they work their way down the boulevard. Every man and woman unknown to the police as a law-abiding person must show papers. The result of a recent raid of this kind was the verification of the papers of 52 professional beggars, 4 cocaine merchants, and 103 women of the streets.

Besides the rounds of the plain-clothes men on the hunt for civilians in default of soldiers, the army now make nightly rounds of the wine and beer shops for delinquent soldiers. When one is seen inside a wine shop the stroke of a sharp hammer brings him to a realization that martial law is still in force, and he salutes meekly and returns to his quarters.

SOLDIERS TO GET WORK REGARDLESS OF POLITICS France Will Not Discriminate in Case of Any Cripples

(By Associated Press.)—PARIS, Sept. 3.—The ministry of the interior took cognizance today of assertions that crippled soldiers would not be employed in the public service without inquiry into their political opinions.

The ministry announced that the government had determined to reserve for such men a large number of places without regard to their political or religious beliefs because all had served the country with equal courage and had been equal in recognition. This announcement is regarded in Paris as further evidence of the permanence of the "red union," uniting all professions of faith and politics. There are already employed in public departments many one-legged or one-armed soldiers.

WIDOW OF SLAIN DOCTOR HAS CHARGE OF FUNERAL

Mrs. Mohr Acts Just as if She

Inciting Murder

(By Associated Press.)
PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 3.—Attached to the funeral of the slain doctor, Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, who was shot by a mob of negroes in the state capital, Mrs. Elizabeth Mohr, released on bond of $10,000, had full charge of the funeral today of her husband, from whom she had been separated for several months.
Mrs. Mohr sent out invitations to the funeral and asked Rev. Francis J. Bascom, pastor of the Episcopal church in the city, to read the Episcopal funeral service. Mrs. Mohr also directed that the funeral should take place at the Episcopal church. Only close friends of the family were asked to attend.
Mrs. Mohr arrived at the funeral about 10 o'clock. She was dressed in a simple black gown. She was seen by the crowd of negroes who were gathered outside the church.
She was not disturbed by them.
She went to the funeral as if she were not the widow of a man who had been shot by a mob of negroes.

Charles Manning Mohr, of New York, a son of the physician by a former marriage, also was here to attend the funeral. He was seen by the crowd of negroes who were gathered outside the church. He was not disturbed by them. He went to the funeral as if he were not the son of a man who had been shot by a mob of negroes.

Mrs. Mohr today lost her composure for the first time since suspicion fell upon her. She had attempted a formal interview but it was soon interrupted by a mob of negroes who were gathered outside the church. She

Believing Himself Deserter, French Officer Ends Life

(By Associated Press.)
PARIS, Sept. 3.—The idea that a soldier of France should desert the army at the time of his country's greatest need was weighed upon the mind of Lieutenant Fouquet that he committed suicide today under the hallucination that he himself was a deserter.

The lieutenant was a clerk of the supreme court, and had been detailed to act as a representative of the ministry of justice before the second court-marshal of Paris. In this capacity he was called upon to investigate many cases of desertion. His mind thus fixed upon this subject it came to haunt him, and preyed upon him until he became deranged.

Every unknown person whom he encountered in the palace of justice he took for a secret service man on his track. This morning he was having breakfast with his family, when the door bell rang.

"They are secret service agents, come to arrest me for desertion," he cried. He went to his room and before he could be arrested, seized his revolver and shot himself dead.

100 Men Chase Convict Who Attacked Guard

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
GAINESVILLE, Ga., Sept. 3.—Ernest Jackson, colored, a four-year prisoner confined in the Hall county convict camp, slipped upon A. B. Kirby, residing at No. 60 N. Main street, Gainesville, and one of the guards at the convict camp now working the public roads just outside of the city limits this morning and beat him with a shovel until he was rendered unconscious and very nearly lifeless.

There were several other negro convicts at the same place at work and they took their tools and walked back five miles down the road to the white camp or camp No. 1. Kirby was brought to local hospital bloody and speechless and it is feared he will die as a result of the blows inflicted.

This negro, Ernest Jackson, was sent to chain-gang for stealing four hogs from Brenau college and made his escape from the camp last week, but was captured and put back to work.

He took Kirby's pistol this morning and ran to the woods and a hundred men are after him.

Let's begin with the Junior Miss who is going away this fall to boarding school.
She will want, first of all, one of these

New Coat Suits

The styles are distinctly young folk's;
very, very different from the grown-ups', in that coats are loose fitting, often falling from a raglan sleeve; some are yoked, some fashioned after the Russian style.

The chin chin collar is smart, often effected by the use of fur band placed under the collar. These style points are developed in suits of serge, gabardine, poplin, mixture weaves and velvets. Navy, a rich bottle green and African brown lead.

They are $17.50 to $35.00.

Street Dresses

Intermediate sizes.
Very attractive affairs are these serge and silk combination dresses that feature the new jacket effect--the jacket is often a short bolero, of serge, the skirt of taffeta, sometimes a plaid, sometimes a plain shade.

They are $9.75 to $17.50.

Evening Dresses

Fresh, crisp, lovely.
Taffetas in pink, light blue, white, in basque and overskirt styles--others of chil-fon over net; decidedly quaint.

They are $13.50 to $21.50.

Middy Blouses

Scores of them in one style after another
--in the well known and well liked Paul Jones make. See them!

Little smocked affairs are new; others are plain with pockets and pearl buttons. They come in white, rose, red and Copenhagen.

The beauty about this weather is that it is the kind Atlanta has all the time!

Those seeing Georgia tourists did well to offer north Georgia as the seeing territory.

Credit must also be given Secretary Lansing for his intelligent diplomatic co-operation with the president.

An Essential Step Toward The Central High School.

The Board of Education and the City Council are virtually a unit in supporting the plan to establish a central high school capable of serving the needs of both Atlanta and Fulton county, a truly great institution modeled on university lines and affording the youth of this community, boys and girls alike, advantages unexcelled in the United States. Projected months ago, this enterprise has grown swiftly in public favor and has assumed a more and more definite aspect. Its consummation is assured, if those who are directing it are encouraged to go forward in the spirit of foresight and harmony with which thus far they have proceeded.

That this will be the case, it is earnestly hoped and believed. The educational authorities of the city and the county are in cordial agreement as to broad principles involved. It only remains to work out the necessary details, and this task is now happily under way. A preliminary step of much importance was taken when the Board of Education provided means for co-ordinating the work of the four high schools now in separate operation. This is obviously essential to the ultimate union of all these schools in one great system, as a commodious, modernly equipped plant.

For example, the Boys' High school, the Girls' High school, the Tech High and the English Commercial now work upon divergent lines. They have different plans of grading and marking, and though the major subjects taught in each of them are duplicated in a number of instances there is little or no common ground of policy and method. If these institutions are to be combined in a central high school, they must be co-ordinated in matters of principle and practice; each must be related to the larger system of which each is to be a part, instead of being left, as now, independent and in some respects conflicting units.

This does not mean that any one of these schools should be shorn of its distinctive service. It simply means that they should be brought into more helpful and economical relationships one to the other. All the subjects now taught in the four separate schools will be taught in the central school, and many other useful subjects, no doubt, will be added. But whereas there are now four departments of English, to mention a single example, under the new system there will be only one department of English, just as in a college or university; and this department will be supplied with an ample number of efficient instructors. And so with other subjects.

Furthermore, under the unit system of studies which the Board of Education already has established in Atlanta High schools, students will be permitted to elect, with the advice of their instructors and parents, the particular group or course of studies that will best serve their future needs and aims in life. Thus the boy who expects to enter some field of industry or trade can choose the course that bears most practically upon his plans, while the boy who looks to a profession can prepare himself to enter a university. Likewise, the girl who intends to become a business woman and the girl who wishes to pursue further paths of scholastic work, can each select the course most suitable to her purpose. In short, the central high school will be adapted at every point to the interests of life and to the aptitudes of the individual student.

But as a prerequisite to such a school, there must be a co-ordination of the divers departments and policies of the four existing schools. This, indeed, is now more essential to the purposes aimed at than is the establishment of a central plant. The schools must be unified in principle before they can be unified in fact.

With this all-important end in view, the Board of Education has created a department of High school supervision, to be in the charge of an executive known as principal of High schools. His duties naturally will be administrative, as are those of the president of a college, and his immediate task will be the unification of the work of the four separate high schools preparatory to the actual establishment of one central high school. As this task must be performed if the hope of the central high school is to materialize and as there must be some competent official charged especially with its performance, it is evident that upon this wise action of the Board depends very largely if not entirely the success of the greatest educational enterprise Atlanta ever has conceived.

It is to be hoped, therefore, that Council will ratify the Board's eminently practical plan in this regard. A project that has gone forward so expeditiously thus far should not be obstructed at this stage by paltry dissensions. A great central high school means a greater Atlanta, and everyone who is devoted to the community's welfare and upbuilding should work harmoniously to this splendid purpose.

The Russian line has been crimped, pierced, broken, routed and beaten, and still the Germans can't let go.

Why go to California when the boasted California weather is being surpassed at home?

General Hamilton continues to report inch advances at the Dardanelles.

Teutonic Threats in the Balkans.

The massing of Teutonic troops on the Rumanian and Serbian frontiers is regarded as a political rather than military stroke. Germany and Austria are desperately eager for a path by which to send munitions to their despairing ally at the Dardanelles, and it is doubtful that they would hazard at this juncture a united Balkan resistance.

The Central Empires have been striving for months past to obtain a right of passage through Rumania for the shipment of war supplies to Turkey. But threats and blandishments alike have proved unavailing. Rumania has insisted, with something of irony in her tone, that to open her territory for such a purpose would be an unnatural act, and she has reminded the Teutons that they themselves have protested against the shipment of munitions from America to the Allies. Some weeks ago Austria issued a virtual ultimatum on the subject, but Rumania stood unbending. It is supposed, therefore, that the hostile demonstration along the latter's border is intended as a final experiment in the game of threats.

That Austria and Germany will attempt an actual invasion of Rumania or a smashing blow against Serbia is considered extremely doubtful. "Any fresh attack on Serbia," writes a diplomatic correspondent in the Near East, "will certainly recreate the Balkan League, and such a contingency—bringing into action against the Teutonic powers more than 1,250,000 men—German diplomacy cannot possibly contemplate." The Rumanian army itself, numbering some six hundred thousand men, is mobilized and could be thrown against Austria on short notice.

Apparently, there is no way either by persuasion or force for the Teutons to reach the beleaguered Turk with timely aid. The campaign on the Gallipoli peninsula has been trending steadily in favor of the Allies. Unless all portents are misleading, the fall of the Dardanelles is not far distant; and with that event, there is reason to believe, will come the turning point of the war.

Millions to Ticks.

Ninety million dollars a year is rather a big bill to pay the cattle tick, but that is what this pest cost the United States during the last twelve months. The estimate, which is made by Dr. A. D. Melvin, chief of the federal bureau of animal industries, is based on extensive observations and is supposed to err, if at all, on the side of conservatism. Besides killing thousands of head of stock, the cattle tick decreases the value of hides, the quantity and quality of milk production and in many other ways saps the life and profit of the cattle industry.

It is gratifying to note, however, that in recent seasons great progress has been made in eradicating the cattle tick. Particularly is this true in the South where a vigorous campaign has been carried forward through the co-operative efforts of State and federal authorities and the farmers themselves. Once free from cattle tick, the South will be the greatest cattle-raising region of the entire country.

Editorial Echoes

Every cry that is heard against preparedness is based on the theory that the movement for adequate national defense involves a gigantic standing army. This is nothing more nor less than a pacifist "man of straw." A standing army adequate to repel invasion would be almost prohibitive in cost unless compulsory service and conscription were resorted to. The burden placed upon Germany, France and Russia by their standing armies would have bankrupted those countries had a volunteer system been attempted by them, with the pay necessary to complete such organization. Americans should realize that they have been spared the two or three years of their lives which had they lived as citizens of most Continental countries, would have been appropriated by the State. Fortunately the United States, like Great Britain, is blessed with a sea frontier, and in consequence our principal and indeed our sole effective defense is on the sea.

An army of five million or even ten million men would be inadequate to prevent the United States from final defeat in war were the enemy stronger at sea. Exactly as the great German war machine was unable to protect the German colonies in Africa, China and the Islands of the Pacific, just as surely would the United States with a beaten navy see the capture of Alaska, Puerto Rico, the Philippines and Hawaii and the seizure of the Panama Canal. A blockade even without an invasion could be maintained until the United States would be brought to terms. The first line of defense against invasion, and the only line of defense against defeat, is supremacy at sea. The price of peace is an adequate navy.—New York Herald.

Power of Superstition.

BY ADDISON REUCE.
Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Psychology and Parenthood," etc.

THE next time you are inclined to scoff at any person for indulging in "superstitious" beliefs and practices, just stop a minute and consider whether you are not in some degree superstitious yourself.

If you make an honest self-examination I have not the slightest doubt that you will find more charitably disposed toward the "poor fool" whose belief in ghosts, witchcraft, or charms were about to ridicule.

Not long ago there was a notable trial in Boston of a man accused of killing "by magic stones" the course of a race trial, which ended in a conviction after a full sentence. It developed that for several years he had done an enormous business in these magic gems.

His patrons, who annually numbered up in the thousands, were by no means all the impressionable and the uneducated. It was found that men and women of prominence, people of real intellectual power, had conspired to swell his profits.

And some of these people had even sent him letters testifying to the "good luck" which his "lucky stones" had brought them.

Personal observation and research have indeed satisfied me that education is an art far from being an absolute antidote for superstition.

I once closely questioned a number of Harvard university professors and instructors to ascertain their freedom from, or freedom in, superstitious customs. I found that, with only two exceptions, every one of the highly educated men whom I questioned confessed to having some pet superstition.

Several of them, "knocking on wood" to avert misfortune after a boastful remark. Others could not pass a pin without picking it up. Others believed it bad luck to go under a ladder.

One eminent historian, a serious and matter-of-fact and hard-headed man as could be met anywhere, confessed to me that he felt quite uneasy unless he was standing at a certain position when he caught his first glimpse of the new moon.

Other investigators—notably Prof. Dressler, who conducted an extensive census of superstitions in California in the early part of the century—have found that, no matter how well educated a man may be, he usually has in him a superstitious streak.

It means, for one thing, that to a certain extent omens and charms "work." If they did not, faith in them would soon vanish.

To be sure, it can readily be shown that it is the faith of the owner, not the omen itself, which really counts, by leading to action calculated to bring about the expected result.

But most people do not stop to consider this. Hence the durability of belief in omens.

In addition, the prevalence of superstitious notions among the well educated indicates the best of education is not the antidote for superstition in early life. Then it is by parent, nurse, or neighbor that belief in signs and tokens is first implanted in the mind, to linger in some measure throughout life.

How Do You Ring?

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.
(Copyright, 1915, by Frank Crane.)
"It is failure to respond to that constitutes absence of life," writes Dr. Albert S. Gray.

And Max Muller has told us:
"But most people do not stop to consider this. Hence the durability of belief in omens."

Whether you are alive or not, therefore, depends on how well you ring?

Myriad forces constantly impinge upon you. You are being played up, as a piano. What sort of music do you give forth?

Through the air come the blows of sunshine and cloud, of the busy street and the still country lane, of houses, of rooms, of faces, of pictures, of stars, of animals, birds, plants, stones, an infinite congeries of things touching upon your keyboard.

Through the air sound the night roar of the city, the soothing of wind, the patter of rain, the cold of the winter, the intimate accents, all the wide orchestra of existence.

Through the nostrils odors, offensive and pleasing, smells of wood, of grass, of rain, of dust; every substance has its peculiar aroma with which to smite our consciousness.

Add to these the impressions we receive through taste and touch.

Also there are the strokes that fall upon our souls through the mind, through reading, reason, memory, imagination; through love, hate, indifference; through hope and despair.

If I could listen to your spirit I would hear perpetual music pouring out, as from an orchestra.

What sort of music do you make? Are you a great, broad-sounding, enchanting, low world? Are you a cheery tune, delighting all who are near you? Or are you a crashing discord, a walking boiler-plate, a ranting, ranting cacophonous?

Look how the fingers of bright gold: This is not the smallest orb which thou beholdest. Still in his motion like an eagle, he strikes. Still quivering to the young-eagle cherubim.

Such harmony as in immortal souls; So strangely quicken'd with that eternal fire, That grossly clothe'd it cannot hear it.

Travelette

BY NIKSAH
NO. 285.—PRESCOTT.

A rem of a town on the roof of a continent is Prescott, Ariz. Reached by a tortuous railway that climbs impenetrable gorges and descends among the defiles of precipitous mountains, it nestles among the peaks of the Sierras, and listens to the howling of rowdy winds among the pines. Its streets, which scramble up hill and down canyon, furnish the arteries that lead to its decorative, lumber-built homes, that are planted like mosaics in the sides of its mountain ridges.

A subdued Prescott it is since that wave of reform swept first gambling, and then the saloon from the state, and removed those elements which the romancer loved, the Palace saloon and the Mining exchange have been displaced by commercial establishments of respectability and the whirr of the roulette ball, the clatter of poker chips, and the bark of the faithful six-shooter that once was wont to grow out of such amusements are to be heard no more.

Yet Prescott is still the center of a land of romance. On the ten thousand hills of the desert, crumpling away for a hundred miles in every direction, are to be found the cattle ranges that are still the scene of the cowboy life, the typical earlier days of the frontier.

Groups of cowboys still follow the chuck wagon into the solitudes, for the roundup. They ride and rope and brand with the same abandon, carol as blithely, and run the ranch rather upon such a scale of sky. But when the work is over their savings build them homes in Prescott instead of going the ways of the cowboy.

And among the cattle ranges roundabout are planted many of the choicest mining properties in the world. There is Congress mine, which boasts the deepest shaft on the continent, and the Minto mine, owned by Kinley once at Jerome, nearby, where the President Moore was an owner. There are the Santa Clara copper mines at Jerome, nearby, where the owner issues orders as to the number of millions of dollars that are each year to be taken from the earth, and his superintendents produce accordingly. There are many ancient properties to which modern science is turning the blindfold for the gold that escaped those processes that were in use a few decades ago.

The gem city of Prescott is the home of such men as these—modern, virile—men who have been born in America, and who did not go to the west because he was the pluckiest and fittest of the country from which he came.

HELPFUL INSECTS

BY FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

WITHOUT the humble bumble bee there would not exist a single clover field in the United States.

Uncle Sam knows that for he has recently made a very apt effort to raise clover in the Philippines where there were no bumble bees. He failed. That is he failed until he mobilized an army of these creatures of the buzz and the sting, and transported them to the islands of the far east and set them to work in the clover fields. Now, thanks to their activities, clover grows as abundantly there as anybody could wish.

The bumble bee belongs to that family of insects that makes itself useful by carrying the pollen from one flower to another, and so it fertilizes those flowers. It is a provision of nature that no flower is sufficient unto itself. If a paper bag is put over one of them and it is therefore shut off into a world by itself, it will bloom as prettily, run its customary course, wither and die as it would if left in the open. But no seeds will result from its flowering.

This is because, to serve its purpose of developing seed, it must receive the pollen from some other flower of its kind and in that way be made fertile. There are certain blossoms that are thus fertilized by having the pollen blown from one to the other. But there are more that need to call one of nature's messengers and specifically send their little package.

The busiest go-between for such flowers are bees. To induce these creatures to perform their vital errand, the flowers keep on hand a good supply of sweets. The bees come for the sweets and, while they are feeding upon them, the flowers stick the pollen all over their legs. When they wipe their feet on the doormat of the next flower, they leave some of this pollen. It makes the development of the seed possible.

When Americans went into the Philippines they carried with them clover seed from their former homes. The clover did not take root on the islands, and the islands and they took root and grew. They blossomed and there was the odor of the clover field in the land. But the blossoms fell off and there was no seed resulting. The clover fields were not able to reseed and perpetuate themselves. Under these conditions clover might not be cultivated in this new land beneath the flag. The experts investigated the situation and found that the failure was due to the fact that there were no bumble bees to visit socially from one flower to another in the clover fields of the far Pacific.

When the trouble was discovered it was decided that these insects should follow the flag. The United States government went to a great deal of trouble in collecting bumble bees for the purpose of introducing them to the Philippines. They were packed in ice that they might continue in the belief that it was still cold despite the tropical heat. They were allowed to warm up and awake. They thought summer had come. They went forth into the barren clover fields and there they found that the clover was not fertile and became plentiful. Now clover may be grown as well in the Philippines as in the United States.

The most interesting case of tiny insects helping a man to grow a great crop was that of a wasp about the size of a gnat, without which none of us would ever taste those delicious dried figs of the Smyrna fig. So baffling was the problem of the work done by this insect that it required twenty-five years of scientific work to solve it. Until it was solved it was considered one of the unsolvable problems of the world. Millions of pounds were every year imported from the region at the east end of the Mediterranean which has been the scene of much fighting between the Turks and French and British.

Before Jamestown or Plymouth Rock were settled the Spanish padres pushed their way into what is now California, and they found that the natives had many new crops and taught them how to farm them. Among these were figs, a crop which fitted into the conditions of the southwest and that have grown abundantly ever since.

California sought to market the figs that grew so well there, and it was necessary to find a way to get them to the market. The figs were packed in boxes and shipped to the market. The figs were packed in boxes and shipped to the market. The figs were packed in boxes and shipped to the market.

Several trials failed until, finally, a consignment of the insects was brought over in a shipping crate. They arrived at just the right stage of their development. Immediately went forth upon their work of fertilization, thrived and started a race of their kind. They soon filled all the country with their kind. The figs at the Smyrna were yielding abundantly. From their work a great industry has grown.

Obviously the one thing necessary to make the trees of California yield figs was to get sufficient of these tiny wasps to run in and out of the holes of the figs and deposit the seed. The tiny wasps, by bringing a colony of these tiny creatures half around the world and making for them a home under conditions it was now their task. To accomplish this life cycle of the insect must be understood, the food it requires must be known and provided. Conditions must be created under which it can make the long trip and thrive and breed.

GUESTS ATTRACTED BY NEW WATER SETS

Taste of Hostess Admired by Visitors Served From Glassware Trimmed in Venetian Gold

What a beautiful pitcher! Such beautiful glasses! Such beautiful water! Such beautiful hosts! Such beautiful guests! Such beautiful a number of her friends at her home. The young hostess had a separate tumbler, exactly matched to the pitcher, for each guest, and she was proud to feel that she did not have to expose the refreshment from broken sets of old tumblers.

The set that attracted the admiration of the young lady's guests was one of the Venetian gold-trimmed sets supplied by the Journal on coupon which the young lady had clipped. The tumblers each hold one half a pint, the pitcher holds three pints and each is exquisitely decorated and initialed in Venetian gold.

Several extra sets of six glasses each were procured by the young lady for the festive occasion above described, proposals having been made by The Journal to give extra glasses to be given out as explained in the display announcements of the coupon appearing in another column daily.—(Adv.)

Electric Street Lights Installed at Clarksville

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
CLARKSVILLE, Ga., Sept. 3.—Current was turned on the new street lighting system, just installed here by the Georgia Railway and Power company, last night. The system is the "last word" in electric lighting and the little city is justly proud of it. Work of the completing the commercial and house lighting lines is being rapidly pushed to completion.

With her three miles of cement sidewalks and electric lights the town is taking on new life and with good crops of grain, apples, etc., maturing, a spirit of optimism prevails throughout the entire county of Habersham.

Columbus Decides to Buy an Incinerator

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
COLUMBUS, Ga., Sept. 3.—Following the announcement of Mayor Cook a day or two ago that he was in favor of the issuance of bonds in the sum of $75,000 for the construction of up-to-date river terminals in this city, came news that the council had voted to authorize the sanitary committee of that body to purchase an incinerator to dispose of the city's garbage at a cost of $4,000 to be established at once and to be in operation in the fall when it is found to be needed.

The city's garbage problem has been a source of considerable worry to the sanitary authorities for some time and the action of council yesterday has met with general approval among the people.

Columbus may soon construct a new municipal lighting plant. A resolution was introduced in council last night providing that the city electrician ascertain the cost and all details of such a plant as would be needed in this city with a view of establishing such an enterprise to be owned and operated by the municipality. The resolution was unanimously adopted. The author of the move, Alderman F. Reich, stated that "the city now owns her water supply, and there is no reason why she shouldn't operate her lighting plant." With a bond issue this could be constructed, and I believe it the thing for the city to have. The new is the time for it," he continued.

Optimism Is on Increase at Royston

ROYSTON, Ga., Sept. 3.—The recent advance in the cotton market has acted as a fine tonic on business men and farmers. Cotton is bringing from 9 cents to 10 cents per pound on Royston streets. Indications are that the yield will be above average in this immediate territory.

The Southern Railway company is breaking dirt to construct a commodious and strictly passenger depot at Royston, which will add much to the appearance and convenience of the city.

YOUTHFUL YEGG GROWS A WONDERFUL BEARD

Detectives Will Have Hard Job
Identifying Mason Unless
He Shaves

When Harry Mason, the youthful yegg who confessed to safe robberies from Seattle to Tiger Bay and later repudiated every statement he made, is arraigned in the superior court on September 8 or 9, the detectives whom he has befuddled will be hard put to identify the young man.

For Mason now has whiskers that would be the envy of Old Man Beard himself. It has been nearly two months since Mason was bound over in recorder's court for the robbery of the Woodside Storage company and other Atlanta firms. During that time he has been confined in the tower, and he hasn't shaved once.

The result is a most beautiful cascade of hair from his lips to his chest. He combs his whiskers every night and is very proud of 'em.

"Oh, no, I didn't grow a beard to disguise myself," said Mason Friday. "First I was too lazy to shave, and now I think it's becoming. Besides, the detectives haven't got anything on me. All that stuff I told 'em about cracking safes to the tune of $50,000 was just bunk. Well, till I get to court, I'll make myself out the biggest liar unbug."

GETS RICH AS BANKER FOR ALASKAN MINERS

Margaret Mulrooney

(Special Correspondence of The Journal.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—When Margaret ("Peggy") Mulrooney, at nineteen, returned from a Paris boarding school she said to her sister, the Countess Carboneau, "I have seen Europe, and it was good. What shall we do now?"

To which the sister, not a contented thing, replied: "Let's make our fortunes." With an adventurous spirit the girls went to Alaska, where fortunes were being made almost to order. The sisters Mulrooney joined the general rush north.

In Alaska they established a bank, with the elder sister as president and Miss "Peggy" as cashier and secretary. Their bank was at Nome City.

Miners brought their piles of gold dust and nuggets. Handsome commissions were paid, and the bank flourished. During the winter when mining was at a standstill the sisters loaned out money at regular Alaska banking interest.

"It sure was easy money," said Miss Peggy Mulrooney, who was here recently on a visit from the north. "After making our 'take' in Alaska we bought an apple ranch at North Yakima, Wash., and that, too, is almost as good as a pay-streak in Alaska."

She is not yet thirty.

Price Gets Check For $139,000,000, But It's Phoney

"My ship has come in at last," whispered James D. Price, state commissioner of agriculture, when he opened his mail on Thursday and a check for $139,000,000 fluttered from a slit envelope.

At once Mr. Price was certain that the prophecy of a Tybee fortune teller of agriculture, when he opened his mail on Thursday and a check for $139,000,000 fluttered from a slit envelope.

Reason for Her Claims

"Isn't that perfectly ridiculous!" exclaimed Mrs. Binks. "That young Mrs. Upatarte who lives around the corner actually has the audacity to claim that she is of royal lineage."

"Well," said the head of the house, stroking his grey moustache as he thought of bygone days, "she may be so far wrong at that. I remember her mother when she was a girl, and believe me, she was some queen."

WILSON ASKS GARRISON AND DANIELS TO PREPARE PROGRAMS FOR HIM AT ONCE

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Publication of President Wilson's letters to Secretaries Garrison and Daniels calling upon them to prepare for him definite programs for strengthening the army and navy, brought to the attention of the nation the question of national defense to the forefront again today. The president will submit his proposals with his recommendations to congress at its forthcoming session.

Another angle to the question of national defense is the announcement by Acting Secretary Roosevelt, of the navy department, of plans for building up of an adequate national naval reserve, in addition to the existing state militia and the regular reserve created by the last congress, through mobilization of yachtsmen and power boat owners and their craft with navy reserve ships in a training squadron.

In army and navy circles today the nature of the recommendations the president will make as a result of conferences he plans to hold soon with Secretaries Garrison and Daniels and others, was awaited with keen interest. This can only be determined, the president says, after further study on the subject.

The president's letter, although written last month, has just been made public. In it he asked Secretaries Garrison and Daniels to get the advice of departmental experts and submit plans formulated in very definite terms.

Pursuant to this request, the two secretaries have about finished their reports. They will shortly be before the president, after which he will confer with the heads of the congressional military and naval affairs committee.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 3.—Governor H. D. Hatfield, in a speech here yesterday, declared he would not call a special session of the West Virginia legislature for the purpose of repealing or weakening the prohibition laws of the state. He said he believed a great majority of the citizens wanted prohibition laws and it was his duty to carry out their wishes.

Reports from various West Virginia cities recently said petitions were being circulated, urging the state executive to call a special session to enact legislation which would permit the use of light wines and beer.

TODAY'S EVENING STORY

THE DEBT

(Copyright, 1915, by W. W. Weller.)

WHEN Malvina Culbert's father died and left his entire property to her, his only child, she found that among her securities was a mortgage on Mark Turner's store. Old Ezra Culbert had been a hard man, who loved his money. He had helped make a good many people poor that he might become rich. His whole life was one network of schemes to get money, but it all came to an end suddenly in an attack of acute indigestion.

Malvina was not unprepared for the responsibilities of business. Her father had taken pains to teach her. She had always helped him with his affairs, and he thought that had trained her so well that when he was dead she would go on getting money just as he had done. As a daughter she was perfectly satisfactory in that she was obedient to the last degree. Ezra had kept her from being married by telling her that no man would want her save for money. He believed that he had made her distrustful of all humankind, and there was nothing like distrust to keep a woman's heart cold and hard.

Malvina, alone in the old, shabby

She Had Lost Her Heart to Him.

house, which always so successfully fooled the tax collector, sat calmly one day taking stock of herself and of her life, past, present and future. It was a bright February day, thawing and mild. Malvina wore a black dress that had been made over three times, and had been her mother's to begin with. Her mother had died when she was sixteen. She was thirty-four now. For eighteen years, then, she had been her father's servant, until obedience had come a habit. But now there was no body to obey. It seemed to her that all the longings that she had hoarded for eighteen years were bursting their bounds now and rising about her. She sat and rocked with her small hands clasped staring at the streak of sunshine on the hideous Brussels carpet and wondering at everything.

"The time has come for me to foreclose the mortgage on Mrs. Prime's little place," she thought, "and I can't do it. I can't turn that poor woman out of her home just because she can't pay me a lot of money I don't need. Why, I don't know how to spend the money I have. I suppose it was different with father; he felt that he was saving for me. But I have no one to save for. And a woman who eats very little and has no new clothes does not need much money." Here the rusty old bell on the front door interrupted. Mark Turner had come to make a payment on the mortgage she held on his store.

When she was sixteen Malvina had gone to school with Mark Turner and had lost her heart to him. He had, of course, never suspected this, as he was

"I know it is asking much," he said, "but I will pay when I can."

In love with Marian Hobble. He had hurried in business and married Marian. For a long time Malvina had felt very bitterly toward the woman who was so much prettier than she could win Mark's heart. She never went into his store and for a dozen years now she had not spoken to him. She knew nothing about him. It had amazed her very much to find that she had a mortgage which practically covered his entire property.

"Sooner must have taken it the very day he became ill."

"Miss Culbert, I've come to see you about that payment," Mark said. He was a tall, fine looking man of forty, but today his face was drawn and tired.

"It is not due until the 20th," replied Malvina, consulting her papers.

"I shall not be able to make it then," Mark said. "I would like to tell you if you will be so good as to listen."

Malvina bowed, assuming her father's cold manner to add her in her embarrassment.

"This mortgage," Mark said, "was in the hands of Lyander Morse. He sold it to your father, and he had always been very easy with me. He understood that I was honest and would pay if I could. He understood also that I was in great difficulty. My store is a hard number," he spoke with terrible

FRIDAY. I SAW A CHAP SEARCHING ON THE SAND TODAY. SO I ASKED HIM WHAT HE HAD LOST. "MY MOUNTAIN PEN," SAID HE. "I HAD IT WHEN I SAT DOWN HERE." HAVE YOU SEARCHED YOUR

POCKETS? "I ASKED. "YES, I HAVE," SAID HE. "AFTER HUNTING AWHILE, I SAID, 'YOU HAD BETTER FISH YOUR POCKETS ONCE MORE!'"

HE DID, AND SURE ENOUGH, HE FOUND THE PEN. "WELL, I'M A PERFECT ASS," HE SAID. "YOU CERTAINLY ARE!" SAID I, FEELING THAT I SHOULD AGREE

bitterness. "I have no money and my credit is not what it was. Maybe I haven't always managed just as well as I might. I presume I haven't. I want you to understand that I'm making no excuses for myself." He paused. "I've got the money for the payment right here in my pocket now, but I'm going to take it to send my wife to the hospital tomorrow."

Malvina gave a gasp. "I never heard that she was ill!" "She is very ill. In fact—" He got up and stood leaning heavily upon his chair. "If you could wait until I could even myself, Miss Culbert. I know it is asking much, but I will pay when I can." Tears were in Malvina's eyes. This was where her father would be hard, but she could not be hard. She held out her hand. "Mr. Turner, I'm very sorry for you and your wife," she said. "Never mind about the money. I hope it will be the means of restoring her to health." He stared at her in amazement. "Thank you," he said, merely, and went out with his head down. "What a terrible thing money does!" Malvina thought. "What an awful power it gives men! God help me to be merciful!"

That afternoon she sent anonymously a box of flowers to Marian Turner, and in it was a $100 bill. Mark's wife died in the operation. "Thank God, I sent that box to her," Malvina said to herself. "I've been glad ever since I did it. I've been glad on account of some other things too. I'm sure the happiness in Mrs. Prime's face did me more good than all the money she could have paid me. I'm thankful I did not send the shorlit to take Mike Culligan's cow away from him. Father would have done it. I suppose I shall use it as a down-and-outer here. I'm going to give up the whole business and go west. Maybe I'll find a fresh start out there. Some failures do." "There's a fresh start for you right here in Westmore," Malvina said. "I wish you'd let me lend you the money for it." "When I can't pay what I owe you," cried Mark. "Malvina," he faltered. "I was like some men I'd take you, money and all!" "I wish you would," Malvina said calmly, and while he stood unbelieving she went on: "I'll have that store fixed up and new goods put in. We'd have a business going there in no time that would pay. I'd really like to do it for you, Mark. I've always liked you."

"But you wouldn't believe I liked you. You'd believe it was because of your money and my debt—"

Malvina smiled gently. "Mark Turner, you wouldn't take me if you didn't like me. I'm worth a million," she cried.

"You're right. I wouldn't," said Mark, as he kissed her.

Malvina is happy now, and her husband is successful. And she doesn't mean that it was her love for Mark that thwarted her father and lost her heart tender though all the hard years of her training.

MODERN MILLER, CHICAGO, OUTLOOK.
CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Modern Miller says threshing was again retarded in the great part of the winter wheat belt this week with frequent heavy rains. Kansas, portions of southern Illinois and Iowa, and the northern part of Indiana were the worst. In the northwestern part of the wheat belt, where the weather was favorable, much rapid threshing was done. In the spring wheat states there were favorable conditions and active threshing in northern Minnesota, northern Iowa, and northern South Dakota, but rains in Minnesota retarded the work. Reports indicate a movement of spring wheat threshing next few weeks. There are no export stimulations at any interior points and the movement is being rapidly absorbed for domestic requirements.

At the commission's findings have been decided upon a conference will be held with the British uniform type commission.

KAISER WANTS CLAIMS SUBMITTED TO HAGUE

Proposal Regarding Arabic and Lusitania Cases Is Made to the United States

(By Associated Press.)
BERLIN, Sept. 3.—(Via London, Sept. 3.)—Germany, according to Count von Bernstorff's instructions, offers to submit the claims for compensation arising out of the Lusitania and Arabic cases to The Hague for arbitration.

Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador at Washington, it is understood, is in possession of fairly wide-reaching authority to negotiate for a settlement of the question, and it is believed proposals he is authorized to make will strike at the heart of the problem as affecting the United States.

They provide for immunity from attack without warning for passenger steamers, which are to be destroyed only after being halted and full opportunity has been given to the passengers and crews to embark in the boats under conditions of safety.

Submarine commanders will be advised of the expected arrival of liners on regular schedules. How far beyond this provision for the safety of the larger ships Count von Bernstorff's instructions go, cannot be learned.

DANGER IN GOING TOO FAR.
Newspaper reports reaching here to the effect that the solution of the submarine problem is coupled with a settlement of the negotiations with Great Britain are declared in initiated circles to be incorrect. It is true that Count von Bernstorff has been instructed to say that the settlement of the old blockade problem would enable Germany to drop the whole submarine warfare against commerce, but this suggestion is quite apart from the proposals indicated above, which are independent and unconditional.

One high government official, commenting on the situation, dilated on the danger for the United States itself in pressing its demands too far. He said:

"There is no telling when the United States itself may want to use its submarines in a life and death struggle."

New Apparatus Of Army Sends Wire 44 Miles

(By Associated Press.)
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 3.—Army men at Fort Leavenworth claimed a record today in having sent a wireless message forty-four miles, using United States army's newest field apparatus, operated by the Fifth and Sixth divisions of Company A, United States signal corps. The older field radio machines were seldom capable of sending radiograms over thirty-five miles.

The new equipment was perfected recently in the government shops at Washington. The outfit can be packed on a mule.

Riot Follows Strike.

(By Associated Press.)
BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 3.—A Small riot, in which hundreds of persons participated, took place outside the Crane Valve company today. Ten policemen used their clubs to control the situation. Two pistol shots were heard, but no one was reported shot.

The trouble started, according to the officers on duty at the Crane plant, where a strike of machinists has been in force for several weeks, when several men tried to prevent others from going in.

It may perhaps be sorry if it has found its hands too tightly.

The press continues to display restraint, so as to avoid embarrassing the government in the delicate negotiations. No paper follows the lead of the National Zeitung in praising President Wilson, but there is an entire absence of hostile or abusive comment or criticism of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg's policy.

Wilson May Not Oppose Arbitrating Damage Claims

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The American position toward a method of fixing reparation for lives and property lost in German submarine operations, such as finally determined, but there probably will be no opposition to fixing the amounts by arbitration.

An arbitration, however, could cover only the extent of damages and not the question of the statement's unannounced merchant ships must not be sunk without warning and opportunity for the escape of noncombatants.

Spain Receives No Reply to Protest to Germany

PARIS, Sept. 3.—Premier Dato, of Spain, stated today that his government had received no reply from Germany to his protest against the sinking of the Spanish steamship Isadora by a submarine except the statement that Germany will lack information concerning the incident.

In transmitting this information to Paris, the correspondent of the Havas agency at Madrid says:

"The Spanish government makes formal denial of the statement published abroad that it has determined upon a general mobilization of 800,000 troops in October."

COPS ON OLD MOTORS DO PRETTY FINE WORK

County Policemen Hornsby and Wells are mounted on motors, all right enough, but they don't ride like Davidsons. They wish this distinctly understood, not because they don't like the Harley-Davidson, but because the county didn't buy enough of these motorcycles to go around, so they are sticking to their old machines.

However, County Policemen Hornsby and Wells have been doing pretty well, notwithstanding their old motors, assigned to the robbery of Kitchens & Phillips store, these officers have within two days caught the two negroes guilty of the burglary and recovered a large part of the plunder. They arrested Lewis Scrutens Thursday afternoon as he was making an attempt to get out of the county and beyond their jurisdiction. Scrutens was implicated with Rufus Harrell in the burglary.

FORMER BANK CASHIER IS CONVICTED AT CAIRO

Jury Recommends Mercy in Case of E. B. Stapleton, of Whigham

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
CAIRO, Ga., Sept. 3.—The jury in the case of the State vs. E. B. Stapleton, former cashier of the Bank of Whigham, charged with felony, returned a verdict of guilty of misdemeanor with recommendation for mercy at a late hour last night.

Judge Cox will withhold sentence till the other cases are tried at the regular term of superior court next week.

The case has consumed four days and was hard fought on both sides. W. T. Crawford, of the city, one of the receivers for the two defunct banks, was on the witness stand for over two days.

W. V. Custer, of Bainbridge, and Solicitor Bell, spoke for the state and M. L. Laddford and Roscoe Luke for the defense. There is one to three indictments against E. M. Smith, of Thomasville; S. P. Cain, O. C. Spence, G. B. Trulluck, Jr., and E. B. Stapleton, all of Whigham.

The first case set for Monday morning is that against O. C. Spence, former president of the two Whigham banks, he was placed under $5,000 additional bond this week on a new indictment by the grand jury, which was in session here. Spence left Whigham immediately after the two banks failed and went west, where he has remained until this week when he returned. His case will be watched with keen interest than any other, it is believed.
